

About the Contributors

James CHIN is Professor and Head of the School of Arts and Social Sciences at the Monash University Sunway campus in Malaysia. A former financial journalist, he is a prolific author and speaker on the politics and economics of ASEAN and South Pacific Rim countries, and on the rights and roles of minorities within them.

Email: james.chin@monash.edu.my

Sophie COUCHMAN is a doctoral student at La Trobe University, Melbourne, working on historical photographs of Chinese in Australia. She is an editor of the on-line Journal of Chinese Australia, has published a number of articles and book chapters about Chinese in Australia, and has helped design or maintain websites relevant to their history. She recently created a self-guided MP3 tour for the Chinese Museum in Melbourne.

Email: sophie.couchman@gmail.com

Ron CROCOMBE is an Emeritus Professor of Pacific Studies from the University of the South Pacific, and a frequent commentator on Pacific affairs whose forthcoming book focuses on the contemporary impact of Chinese in the Pacific. The English-language original of his contribution appears in the first CSCSD Occasional, "Chinese in the Pacific: Where to Now?": http://rspas.anu.edu.au/cscsd/occasional_papers/index.php?issue=01

Email: ronc@oyster.net.ck

John FITZGERALD was foundation Professor of Asian Studies at La Trobe University and Head of the School of Social Sciences there before his retirement in 2008. He has written and lectured widely on East Asian history and politics, and on Australian–Chinese history. His most recent work is the award winning Big White Lie: Chinese–Australians and White Australia (University of NSW Press, 2007). He now works with the Ford Foundation in China.

Graeme HUGO is University Professorial Research Fellow, Professor of Geography, Director of the National Centre for the Social Applications of Geographical Information Systems at The University of Adelaide, and a former Federation Fellow (2002) researching an ARC-funded project on the new paradigm of international migration to and from Australia. Among his numerous publications are the forthcoming "In and Out of Australia: Rethinking Chinese and Indian Skilled Migration to Australia", Asian Population Studies, and "A New Paradigm of International Migration in Australia", New Zealand Population Review, 25, 1-2 (1999): 1-39.

Email: graeme.hugo@adelaide.edu.au

Mei-Fen KUO has just had her doctorate in Chinese–Australian history accepted by the School of Asian Studies at La Trobe University, Melbourne. She is currently revising her study for publication.

Email: lc956050@yahoo.com.tw

Barry McGOWAN, is a Visiting Fellow at the ANU School of Archaeology and Anthropology. A Canberra-based historian and heritage consultant with a doctorate in history from The Australian National University, his main research interests are the history and heritage of Australian mining and the history and heritage of the Chinese people in Australia. He has authored several books, most recently Fool's Gold. Myths and Legends of Gold Seeking in Australia (2006), and is a frequent contributor to academic journals.

Email: barry@cyberone.com.au

Brian MOLOUGHNEY is Professor and Head of the School of Languages and Cultures at Victoria University in Wellington, New Zealand. His research focuses on Chinese history and literature, and the Chinese diaspora. His most recent publications are Disputed Histories: Imagining New Zealand's Pasts (with Tony Ballantyne, Otago University Press, 2006) and Asia in the Making of New Zealand (with Henry Johnson, Auckland University Press, 2007).

Email: brian.moloughney@vuw.ac.nz

Lucille NGAN completed her doctorate in sociology in late 2007 at the University of New South Wales. She is now a Visiting Scholar in the Centre for Asian Studies at the University of Hong Kong.

Email: lsngan@hkucc.hku.hk

Benjamin PENNY is a Fellow in the History of China in the Division of Pacific and Asian History in the Research School of Pacific and Asian Studies, ANU. He is the editor of East Asian History and has edited Religion and Biography in China and Tibet (2002) and Daoism in History: Essays in Honour of Liu Ts'un-yan (2006). He is currently completing a monograph on the contemporary Chinese spiritual group, the Falun Gong.

Email: benjamin.penny@anu.edu.au

Harriet VEITCH trained as a journalist and is a sub-editor at the Sydney Morning Herald, for whom she organises the obituary column.

Bill WILLMOTT is an Emeritus Professor in Sociology from the University of Canterbury in Christchurch, New Zealand, and a specialist in Chinese communities in the Pacific. The English-language original of his contribution appears in the first CSCSD Occasional Paper, "Chinese in the Pacific: Where to Now?", available on-line at:

http://rspas.anu.edu.au/cscsd/occasional_papers/index.php?issue=01

E-mail: wew25@ext.canterbury.ac.nz

Cover art by REN Zhemin.

Photographs: top right, Shong Foon Namchong and his family; bottom left, an unknown Chinese market gardener at 'Mona', near Braidwood.